This week

At the Bored Meeting on Wednesday, Lion P Todd ADAMS said we have a Guest Speaker, but he neglected to give the Bulletin Editor the details. So, Mr. Speaker, welcome to the Noontimers where planning takes a backseat to political incorrectness.

If you are reading the Bulletin live, you know we have been moved to the Courtyard Marriott for a month. If you went to the Cowboys camp and couldn't find us and are reading this online, please see the last sentence in the paragraph above. It applies to you, also.

Next week

It is possible we will have a program next week.

Last Week

It was open — wide open.

Winners

Lion Sig ASKVIK has Free Fines today, while Lion C Andy STAY is our Greeter. Finally, we had a winner in the Attendance Prize and if Lion D Ross OLNEY shows up today, he'll collect $35. Lion P Todd ADAMS had his ticket pulled for the Mad Marble Malarkey drawing, but messed up his attempt to win $230. He palmed the white marble once, put it back into the bag but never took his hand out the second time and no one believed him when he said he'd let go and was lucky to pick it up the second time. The third time, with a clearly fair drawing, he lost. Serves him right. If the second drawing was truly legitimate, it didn't appear to be. Like Calpurnia, a Noontimer president must be above suspicion. [Sorry, your BE has to run in a Shakespeare allusion at least once a year.]

Rumblings From Todd

"A good plan, violently executed now, is better than a perfect plan next week."

"A good solution applied with vigor now is better than a perfect solution applied ten minutes later."

"America loves a winner, and will not tolerate a loser, this is why America has never, and will never, lose a war.

"A pint of sweat will save a gallon of blood."

"By perseverance, study, and eternal desire, any man can become great."
